NIGHTFALL.

Slowly, slowly up the wall
Steads the sunshine, steals the shade;
Evening damps begin to fall,
Evening shadows are displayed.
Round me, o' me, everywhere,
All the sky is grand with clouds
And athwart the evening air
Wheel the swallows home in clouds.
Shafts of sunshine from the west
Paint the dusky windows red;
Darker shadows, deeper rest,
Underneath and overhead.
Darker, darker, and more wan
In my breast the shadows all;
Upwards steals the life of man
As the sunshine from the wall.
From the wall into the sky,
From the roof along the spire;
Ah, the soles of those that die,
Are but the sunbeams lifted higher.

THE TWO PATHS.

"Come George—just a drop at parting.
Heaven only knows when we may meet again.
You are to settle among the hills of Berkshire in the West, and I amid the vales of Middlesex, in the East. Just a glass to our success."

"No, Malcolm: if I would accept a true pledge of success I must not find it in the wine cup. I hold the cup as a signal of failure."

They were young men both of them—
just admitted to the bar, and ready to enter upon the practice of their profession.

And on this bright, crisp autumnal afternoon
George and Malcolm were to separate.
They had selected their fields of labor, and were prepared to enter upon the work.

"Pool!" said Malcolm, in response to his friend's last remark, "there's promise in bright wine if one only knows how to use it. Come and take a parting glass with me."

"No, Malcolm—you must not ask me.
Were I to take the cup to my lips, I should fear it as I might fear a viper taken to my bosom."

"Do you mean to say that you are going to be a teetotaler?"
"Upon that course I am resolved, and let the future decide between us!"

And shortly after this they parted.
Malcolm Carling removed to Middlesex county, where he very soon gained for himself a host of friends and an extensive practice. His intellect was brilliant;
his wit was ready and caustic; his humor
was rich and exuberant, and his flow of language was from a fount of thought and imagery that never failed. His path seemed a pleasant one indeed. Only flowers of rarest colors and most exquisite fragrance hedged it, while sweet music
kept time to the dropping of the glittering sands in the glass. It was the path
he had chosen from the first. Its goal was the highest possible plane of social life, and the presiding genius was the spirit of the wine cup.

He reached the goal ere he knew it. All the joys of the life he had chosen had been tasted ere he reached his prime. A brief space, and the flowers began to wither; the thorns protruded, bare and sharp; the sweet music grew fainter, as discordant notes crept in to mar and break
the harmony; and the sands of the glass
—dropping, dropping, dropping—had lost their glitter, and now fell darkly and solemnly into the black flowing tide of the time that was lost.

George Nixon Briggs established himself in Berkshire, and pursued his path in the way he had chosen. All that he was he owed to his own endeavors; and all that he could hope for in the future must come through the same channel. At the age of thirteen he had been apprenticed
to a hatter at White Creek, New York, where he remained two years. At the age of two years his brother had taken
him from the hatter's shop and sent him to an academy. In one year thereafter his brother had died, from which time he had been left to steer his own chart.

True to the loftier instincts of his nature, he had selected the path of honor and moral duty, feeling assured that if he sought first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, all other things would be given unto him. He was a social man—pre-eminently so—and a more genial companion never blessed the social circle;
but he did not prostitute the higher nature to the allurements of the festive board; nor did he allow himself to be deceived by the false glitter of the bacchanalian tinsel. He lived true to the pledge he had taken in his early manhood—the pledge of total abstinence from intoxicating liquors—and the longer he lived the more reason he had to bless God for the choice he had made.

At the age of thirty he was elected to Congress from the Berkshire district, and in that capacity was retained during six successive terms, declining further service in that direction upon being nominated to the office of Governor. At the age of forty-seven he was elected Governor of Massachusetts, to which office he was annually re-elected from 1843 to 1851.

It was a cold, bleak day in March. Governor Briggs had just descended from his room in the State House, and was leaning against the railing which guards the statue of Washington, in conversation with a friend, when a page approached and handed him a note. It was from the Mayor of the city, informing him that a man had been picked up in the gutter
during the night by the watch, and was now pronounced to be dying of delirium
tremens. "He says," wrote the Mayor,
"that he knew you once—that you were his friend and schoolmate. He would not give his name. If you would like to see him, come soon."

The Governor hastened down to the City Building, and with Dr. Smith, the city physician, he went down into the police station, where the poor wail lay.

Alas! he would never have recognized in that wasted, shattered wreck of humanity the friend of his youth; but so it was. Oh! what a sad, sad sight.

"Has he any consciousness left?" the Governor asked.

"He has had one or two lucid spells;
but the delirium has about spent itself.
He can rave no more."

At this moment the sufferer started and opened his eyes—dark, cavernous eyes, beaming ghastly, but with a gleam of intelligence in their sunken depths.

"Who spoke?" he demanded in a hollow, whispered tone.

"Malcolm, it is I. Don't you know me?"

The poor man struggled to raise himself, and the attendants helped him; and when he had been lifted to a sitting posure, with pillows at his back, he looked up.

"I know the voice," he said.

"And don't you know the face? Look at me, Malcolm."

A little time, and something like a smile broke over the worn and haggard face.

"George! is it you?"

"Yes, Malcolm. I am your old school-fellow. You surely remember me now."
Malcolm Carling grasped the hand of his friend and gazed up into his face.
Another faint smile crept in upon the scarred and tortured features, but it quickly faded away, and something like a pearl glistened upon the drooping lashes.

"Malcolm, what can I do for you?"

"Nothing—nothing, George. I am past help. I chose my own path and I have traveled in it—and here I am. But you
—you. Ah! why should I murmur?
You chose the better path, George—and there you are. You, Governor of Massachusetts; and I—I—"

The voice choked, the features were convulsed; a moment or so, and then the eyes were opened, the smile fitted back,
and he murmured, as his head sank, "sic transit gloria mundi." He had reached the end of the weary way, and another wreck upon the terrible reef which a pernicious habit has reared amid the waters
of life.

Governor Briggs told me the story of Malcolm Carling as we sat together upon the platform on Boston Common, during the public reception of Father Matthew.

A LOVELY REMEDY FOR SWEARING.— A California paper, commenting upon the great temptation to the sin of profanity
in that country, says:

"An intelligent lady of our acquaintance, whose little boy was beginning this strange talk, anxious to explain to her child the horror of profanity, hit upon the novel process of washing out his mouth with soap-suds whenever he swore. It was an effectual cure. The boy understood his mother's sense of the corruption of an oath and the taste of suds, which together produced the desired result."

THE very latest thing in the advertising line is a lady who, through the newspapers, seeks for employment as an "ornamental guest." She will assist at dinner or evening parties—by her grace and wit,
and beauty, contributing to the entertainment of the guests, and she will do everything in the highest style of the art—
only she demands that a handsome compensation be made.

YEARS do not make sages; they only
make old men.

MISCELLANY.

Three whales were captured off Monterey one day last week, whereat the lucky fishermen "rejoiced with exceeding great joy."

George F. Nourse, of Chico, says the ducks and geese have destroyed, of sacked wheat, at Grizzley Bend, quite one and a half tons.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company
advertises for ties to be delivered along the line of the road south of Gilroy. This looks like work.

Estimates place the wine product of Anaheim at upwards of 700,000 gallons
this season, or a quarter of a million gallons in excess of last year's vintage.

During the present Fall fourteen vessels
loaded with wheat at the Oakland wharf.
More would have been loaded had the accommodations been completed earlier in the season.

The Commandant of the Mare Island
Navy Yard loans the flags of the yard for Republican meetings, but says he has no right to loan them to decorate a hall on the occasion of church festivals.

Frankie Moser, infant son of C. Moser, of Foss valley, Napa county, while playing on the doorsteps of his father's house slipped and fell, striking on his head with such violence as to kill him instantly.

Mrs. Cosby, wife of General Cosby, of Chico, dreamed, a few nights before the lottery drawing, that if she would buy a ticket she would draw a prize. She bought the last ticket in town, and drew $400.

The San Jose Mercury says that Senator Maclay, of that county, will be a prominent candidate before the next State Democratic Convention for Lieutenant Governor.

The census returns give Santa Rosa
2,901 inhabitants.

The California Pacific Railroad Company is now making preparations to build a shed at Sacramento two hundred and fifty feet in length, their present buildings not being sufficient to accommodate their growing business.

W. W. Hollister is making preparations to plant 350 acres with apple trees this winter, at Santa Barbara, and as much more next season.

There are thirteen vessels loading with wheat at San Francisco, every one of which is for Europe—three for Cork and ten for Liverpool.

The property of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, in the county of Nevada, has been assessed for $450,362.

The residence of J. M. Hellman, banker of Los Angeles, was recently destroyed by fire. Loss, ten thousand dollars.

William McDonald, of Eureka, was drowned on the 13th inst.

Donahue, the builder of the Sonoma
Railroad, lately sent forward seventy-five men employed to work on the road. They are to receive thirty dollars per month
and their board.

Eighty three boxes of California cured
raisins were lately received in Sacramento
from a Folsom vineyard.

The Republican majority in Illinois is about twenty-eight thousand.

"The last of $700" was the valedictory
written by a New Orleans chap on the

In a New England court, recently, a bummer was defined as a man who will not pay his taxes, and stands on the sidewalk and spits.

Emilee d' Girardin says that nothing
but incompetency prevented the French from having two armies of 150,000 men
each, in the field six weeks after the surrender at Sedan.

An epidemic of sore throat is said to be prevalent in Alsace, in consequence of all the names being changed from French to German.

A vain female in New Mexico endeavored to pass herself off on the census taker as only 108, in the face of the fact that she had a grand-daughter aged 90.

Among the features of a recent fair in Georgia was a cooking match, in which young women were the competitors. Miss Black, a girl aged only fifteen years, took the premium for the best cooked dinner of 12 dishes.

DOWN EAST COURTING.—A Western
paper pretends to give a fair account of the manner in which the "Down Easters"
do their courting. Here is a sample:

Sally, the housemaid, paring apples in the corner. Enter Obadiah, who seats himself in the corner opposite Sally, without saying a word for fifteen minutes, but finally, scratching his head, breaks the silence with:

"There is considerable imperceptible
alterin' in the weather since last week."

"Taint so injudicious and so dubitable cold as it was; the thermometer has lowered up to 100 hundred degrees higher than the zenith," said she.

"I think it is likely," says Obadiah, "for birds of that species fly a great deal higher in warmer days than in cold ones."

Both parties assume a grave and imposing look, and a long pause ensues.
Finally Obadiah gives his pace another harrowing scratch and breaks the silence:

"Well, Sally, we chaps 'are going to ride a sleigh ride, it's such inimitable good sleddin' to-morrow. I suppose they'll have an insatiate good time on it. I should be supernatural happy if you would disgrace me with your company. I should take it as a derogatory honor; besides we are calculatin' to treat the gals well with raisins
and black strap."

"I should be supernatural glad, to disgrace you, but our folks suspect company.
I can't go."

Obadiah sits awhile, and at length
starts up as if a new idea had struck him.

"Well, now, I know what I'll do. I'll go home and thrash out those beans that have been lying in the barn for such a durned long time."

Exit Obadiah.

GEN. A. P. HILL.—If the wandering death bed utterances of the two great Confederate chieftains, "Stonewall" Jackson and Robert E. Lee, may be considered as final upon the matter, then the late Confederate Gen. A. P. Hill, who lost his life at the closing battle of the war, must be accepted by history as the most trusted
coadjutor of these eminent commanders.
In his dying moments, Jackson exclaimed,
"Send A. P. Hill to the front!" Upon his deathbed at Lexington, Gen. Lee, as the telegraph states, his mind reverting to the bloody events of the war, "once ordered his tent to be struck, and at another time desired Hill to be sent for." Thus does it appear that in the supreme moment of the closing hours of these men upon whose shoulders rested the heaviest burdens of the war upon the side of the Confederacy, came the utterances, born of delirium, but more solemn for that reason, that stamps Gen. A. P. Hill as a man whose presence was to be desired and whose fidelity was assured. No higher compliment could be paid to his memory than these parting words of Lee and Jackson.

ITS CHARACTERISTICS.—The New York World thoroughly understands Radicalism and, in a recent issue, gives its leading characteristics in a nutshell. The portrait is so vividly drawn, so perfect in all its details of feature and expression, as to be easily recognized by even the dullest comprehension. It says, The Radical party is the party of strife turmoil and conflict. It fomented discord and encouraged riots in the South for the purpose of delaying reconstruction, and as an excuse to use the military in elections. It keeps one section of the country in an unsettled and uncertain condition, injuring commerce,
business and industry, for the sake of party success. It sends military to one State and declares martial law to frighten people from voting against its candidates.
Its sends military into another State
to force a railroad and carpet-bag ring on the people. It has relied for success in the past on a cry of a bloody shirt. Its leaders now confess that their only hope for success in this State is in a riot and bloodshed in this city. They will fail in their nefarious scheme, and will be worse beaten than ever before.

THE cause of virtue and liberty is confined to no continent or climate. It comprehends within its capacious limits the wise and good, however dispersed and separated in space and distance.

ENVY must be called the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity. It is the most acridulous fruit that grows on the stalk of sin—a fruit so subtle that nothing except the fire of divine love can purge it from the soul.

It is very difficult to keep your own peace of mind, if people thrust pieces of their upon you.

NEWS ITEMS.

Tucson, Arizona, is said to number over 3,000 inhabitants.

Large quantities of base bullion are weekly shipped from Los Angeles. It comes from the Cerro Gordo mines back of that town.

The section of the big tree on exhibition at Stockton a short time since has been sold to parties who have packed it up and shipped it to Chicago by railroad.

Work on the engine and machinery of the new steam launch for the Pensacola at Mare Island has been stopped by an order from Washington. They are to be made and sent out from the East. The work is in quite an advanced state, and unless the order is revoked will prove a dead loss to the Government.

San Francisco seems to have run to billiard matches.

On the 23d the residence of J. H. Cole, in Visalia, was destroyed by fire.

The schooner Frederick William, loaded with coal, struck a rock and sunk near Benicia on the 23d.

Judge Morrison, of the Fourth District Court, says that lawyers shall talk only an hour at a time before his bench.

Sam Gordon ran away from his wife Mary Ann, ten years ago, and she now asks the Court in Marysville to give her a divorce.

During the year ending the 1st instant the Kentucky Mining Company of Virginia City, divided $70,000 among the stockholders.

Evans Jones picked up a forty-two ounce lump of gold in Poorman's Gulch Plumas county, the other day.

Dr. Li Po Tai, the Chinese doctor in San Francisco, who was smart enough to take thousands of dollars from the outside barbarians for medicaments, was blown up the other day by a gas explosion in his private rooms and fatally wounded.

Pneumatic gas has been introduced in Marysville.

Lake county boasts of an assessment roll of $805,145 long.

San Diego is happy. A steamer from New York has visited its harbor.

William Lynds, an Englishman, has been sent to the Insane Asylum, from Marysville.

John Johnson, who recently killed Thornton Carlos, at Virginia City, Montana Territory, has been sentenced to two years and six months imprisonment in the penitentiary.

General Thomas S. Sedgwick has been sent to Washington to look out for the interests of the San Diego and Gila Railroad Company.

The women "suffergists" of Vallejo, having been lately stirred up by Emily Pitts Stevens, have buckled on their armor, and are now ready for the fray.

A family of seven persons were found in the sagebrush, near Pioche, Nevada, the other day, in a destitute condition and starving—four girls being nearly naked. Prompt and effective measures for their relief were taken.

Jack Harris, a Fifteenth Amendment, of Grass Valley, dreamed that robbers were entering his room to rob him, seized his pistol and shot himself. The ball passing through his breast, together with the noise of the report, succeeded in awakening him to the fact that he had nearly killed himself.

DISPELLED VISIONS.—A few weeks since every person, nearly in this county, was on the tip-toe of expectation, and with eyes and ears open, were discussing the railroad probabilities. We, for our part, saw the road, in our imagination, being rapidly pushed up the San Joaquin Valley, and could almost hear the rumble of the car wheels and the shrill whistle of the locomotive. But, alas! how faint are the foundations of many of the hopes that arise in the human breast; they are built upon bubbles that dazzle the eye and please the fancy, but which, when they have sported about for a time at the pleasure of the winds, burst and are lost to sight forever. Our magnificent railroad vision soon vanished; a ghost arose in the shape of a demand for subsidy from Merced county, but the residents of that could not see the propriety of giving a rich corporation so much money, so they arose in force against it, and so the demand was withdrawn, and work suspended on the road, and we are reliably informed that President Stanford has announced that "when Merced county pays a railroad she will be willing to pay for it."

"For into every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

The Fall elections have told the story well. Wherever the Democrats were organized they polled so heavy a vote that they astonished the Radicals as well as themselves. The question of a complete Democratic victory at the Presidential election next year will depend in a great measure upon the complete and perfect organization of the party.

As we go to press this morning, all the indications favor a heavy storm, and in consequence we all feel happy.

[COMMUNICATED]

LOWER CHOWCHILLA, Nov. 22, 1870.

ED. EXPOSITOR:—A few days ago I had occasion to visit, in company with a friend, your pleasant little town of Millerton. Hitching my bay horse and my friend's gray mare to an exceedingly dilapidated vehicle, once honored with the name of "buggy," and having provided ourselves with a bottle of that excellent and invigorating beverage known as "Plantation Bitters," which, by the way, is occasionally resorted to in cases of emergency by some of our itinerant and local divines and "pillars," which fact should be regarded as proof positive of its excellent qualities and harmless influence upon the physical system of poor mortals, saints and sinners, we started. After passing several ranches, flocks of sheep, herds of cattle and horses, we arrived in due time at the beautiful residence of our friend, H. C. Daulton, whose fleecy flocks we found grazing and frisking over hill and dale in the neighborhood. Bringing our fiery steeds to a halt, we descended from our vehicle, my friend having first stowed away in one of his capacious coat-pockets the bottle above alluded to, and thus armed, he, with great intrepidity, led the way to the residence of our friend D. Our intention being so soon as we should get sight of him to present the aforesaid bottle to a la pistol, and demand a surrender. But "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley," for upon entering the residence we were not confronted by the tall figure of our friend, but by his estimable lady and a host of healthy, rosy-cheeked children; upon enquiry we were most courteously informed that Mr. D. was absent from home and not expected to return until the day following. Of course our intended warlike demonstration did not take place; that bottle was not drawn from its hiding place just then, but taking leave of Mrs. D. we repaired back to the well where stood our team, and, finding a bucket, we watered our horses and proceeded on our journey. My friend now drew from his coat pocket the bottle intended for Mr. D. and we both took a long pull and a strong pull at it. The exhilarating influence of the beverage seemed to communicate itself in some way to our horses, who now certainly traveled livelier and faster than before.

At 3 p. m. we arrived at the ranch of our friend E. J. H. He also, like Mr. D., raises lots of sheep and has a fine residence, but unlike him he is an old bachelor, and the affectionate smile of a wife and the prattling voices of children do not greet him in returning home from his day's labors. He knows that

"Tis sweet to hear the watch-dog's honest bark Bay deep-mouthed welcome as we draw near home."

But he does not realize the happiness that

"Tis sweet to know that there are eyes that mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."

We found our good-natured friend upon his porch, tightly packed into a monstrous rocking chair, and as he sat there, swinging to and fro, the chair fairly creaked under the mountain of flesh. Our friend was in a talkative mood and entertained us with several well-told stories, one of which was to the effect that many years ago, while he was driving sheep from Mexico, his provisions gave out, and he had nothing to eat for thirty-five days but one sheep each day, and that he came very near starving to death on that short allowance. Just think of it! a man devours a sheep a day, and at the end of thirty-five days is nearly dying with hunger. Whew!

Our fat friend concluded his conversation by solemnly declaring that he had in his possession an infallible recipe by which any man, no matter how ugly or repulsive his appearance, could gain the eternal love and affection of the most charming lady. Upon hearing this solemn avowal my friend, who is unmarried and on the shady side of forty, and whose personal appearance is rough and uncouth, but whose qualities of heart and mind cannot be excelled, brightened up and thought there might be hope for him yet, and therefore insisted that this all-important secret should be confided to him. Having first exacted a solemn promise from each of us not to divulge this secret to any other person, our fat friend, assuming a grave and mysterious look, proceeded to reveal to our astonished ears this all-powerful charm. He stated how a frog must be caught, skinned, and boiled, its bones ground into an impalpable powder and placed under your pillow, and after performing several other acts of a necromantic character, you must finally fall down, Quixote-like, before your Dulcinea and kiss a diamond ring which she must wear on her little finger. At this point our friend suddenly stopped his revelations and not a word was spoken for several minutes, when my companion whose curiosity was excited, innocently inquired the mode of proceeding in certain emergencies; the information sought was graciously vouchsafed by our fat friend, and feeling that uncommon large fleas were getting in our ears we suddenly remembered that the evening was advancing and we had still eight miles to travel; we therefore hastily departed, while our friend's fat sides fairly shook with laughter. We arrived at Millerton after dark, and as we passed the saloon near the Court House the cry of "stage, stage," met our ears, and one fellow cried out, "there goes Carter & Sillman's humbug." This exclamation puzzled me, and I could not understand it, but was resolved to inquire into its meaning as soon as our selves and horses were provided for. This was soon accomplished, after which we took a stroll through the town, and, entering the saloon above mentioned, we there learned the import of the exclamation which designated us as a humbug. It seems that the mail facilities between Millerton and Stockton have been for several years most excellent and satisfactory until recently, when the contract for carrying the mails was obtained by other parties—new hands at the bellows—since which direful event you have had only one mail per week, instead of a tri-weekly mail as before. From the conversation I overheard in the saloon I learnt that the new concern had been voted an outrageous humbug, and the wish was hopefully and confidently expressed that it would soon collapse and terminate its existence in a very small fizzle. After transacting our business, and it becoming late, we concluded to retire for the night. The night was very dark, and in going up street we veered a little too much to the right, when suddenly my friend stumbled over an obstacle and came sprawling to the ground; as for myself, it seemed as though I was walking through a pile of flour, which filled the atmosphere with dust. Upon regaining his feet, I regret to say that a very impolite and profane expression escaped my friend, for which, however, I did not afterwards blame him, for when we procured a light he had the appearance of having been dusted all over with flour, while my lower extremities, up to the knees, were in a like condition. Upon close examination we found this to be ashes, and were of course convinced of the fact that my friend had fallen into, and I had walked through, an ash pile. We arose early next morning and proceeded to view the scene of our disaster. Arriving in front of your magnificent Court House, there the cause of our mishap stared us in the face. Just in front of the building, and within a few steps of its entrance, there lay piled up a large pile of ashes, and near by lay the large, infernal wooden box over which my friend had stumbled the previous evening, evidently used to bring the ashes to this most appropriate place. Pointing to the box, I asked my friend if he had ever seen it before? "No, by thunder," said he, "but I felt the pesky thing last night, and if the outside of that building is an index to its interior, that house must be a marvel of neatness and cleanliness." We found the people of Millerton cheerful, hospitable and good-natured. The fact that they tolerate such an abominable nuisance right in front of their really fine Court House is evidence sufficient of their good nature.

After having partaken of a good breakfast, prepared in McComb's culinary department, we started on our return; our fat friend's diamond ring story being still fresh in our memories we did not stop to hear a repetition of it, but traveled along easily until about 8 p. m., when we saw the lights of our own domiciles casting their cheerful rays through the darkness.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD!

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from the cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveritable cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous eruptions and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been really cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, without exciting any suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops in one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcers on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this SARSAPARILLA is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear.

Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief and at length cure by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Scrofulous Sores, Ears, Tetters, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and other visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal or Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure all the above complaints. Scrofulous diseases are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis for the system. Those afflicted with Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield on early to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity of the Liver, or Inflammation of the Liver, or Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the racking poisons in the blood. The SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those afflicted with Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and Troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fear, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

THE CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.—The meeting called at the Court House, on last Thursday evening, to take under advice and consent the feasibility of getting up a festival and Christmas Tree, on Christmas Eve, and after discussing the matter decided to proceed. A Committee, consisting of Messrs. A. M. Miles, Annie Greenleaf, Emma Donahoe, Maggie Carroll, and Mr. S. B. Allison, was appointed to solicit funds to meet the incidental expenses of the affair. A Committee of Arrangements, composed of the following ladies and gentlemen, was next appointed to supervise the getting up of the festival and tree: Mrs. Rebecca Shannon, and Mrs. Elizabeth J. McClellan, and Misses Annie Greenleaf and Amanda Miles, and Hon. Gilliam Bailey and J. W. Ferguson. The Committee on Funds proceeded to discharge their duties, on Saturday last, and collected in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifteen dollars, which sum has since been increased to nearly one hundred and forty dollars, (a very liberal collection, indeed). At the earnest solicitation of all parties interested in getting up the affair, Mr. Wm. Faymonville has kindly consented to assist in preparing the vocal music for the occasion. Parents are requested to teach their children such pieces as they desire them to repeat on the occasion, and report the same to the Hon. Gilliam Bailey, at as early a day as possible, so that a programme of the entertainment can be arranged. Those intending to take part in the vocal exercises will meet regularly, we understand, on Monday evenings at the residence of Judge Bailey to practice the singing exercises for the festival. We predict, from appearances, that the festivities on the coming Christmas will be most acceptable and pleasant to all the residents of Millerton and vicinity.

We desire to call the attention of our King's River readers to the advertisement of M. Fleischman & Co., in another column of this paper. The firm, which is composed of E. Jacob of Visalia, and M. Fleischman of Kingston, is a reliable one, and, from personal observation, we can truthfully say that they keep a stock of goods at their store not surpassed in quality, quantity and variety in the county, and their prices are to suit the times. We would say to consumers, try them once and you will be fully convinced of the truthfulness of our assertions. The establishment is connected through Mr. Jacob with the firm of H. D. Silverman & Co., of Centerville, also a reliable, trustworthy and deserving firm.

THE NEW YEARS PARTY.—We noticed a few weeks since that an effort was being made to get up a New Year's party in this town. Last week a meeting was held and it was determined to push the matter ahead and give a pleasant social party in the Court House, on Monday evening, January 20, 1871, to be paid for by the citizens of town, and to which a general invitation is to be extended. Nearly money enough has been raised to accomplish the object, and the question of music seems to be the only thing now in the way of making the affair a complete success. By our next issue we hope to be able to chronicle the consummation of all the necessary preliminaries.

FLOURISHING.—The Lodge of Good Templars lately instituted at this place is flourishing finely, having attained a membership in three weeks of nearly forty. We learn that efforts are being made to establish branches of the Order on King's River and Big Dry Creek.

PERSONAL.—Hon. A. C. Bradford visited this place on last Saturday and Sunday, and appeared to be in good health and spirits. Mr. Elias Jacob, of Visalia, also paid our town a flying visit, on Tuesday of last week.

NO MORE BARBERING ON SUNDAYS.—The barbershop in the rear of Allen's Saloon will be closed on Sunday after this date, so those wishing to beautify themselves must call on week days.

I. O. O. F.—We call the attention of the members of the I. O. O. F. to the advertisement in another column. We hope all brothers of the order will comply with the request contained in the notice referred to.

THE MAILS now arrive and depart from here semi-weekly; arriving on Sundays and Wednesdays, in the evening, and departing on Mondays and Thursdays, in the morning.

MR. DUSY has got his photographic gallery in operation, and the good people of Millerton and vicinity, who want to see themselves as others do, should call on him soon as his stay will be short.

COLD.—The weather for the past few days has been quite cold, so much so, in fact, that "comforters," such as overcoats, hot stoves, hot whiskey and the like, have been in lively demand.

MR. J. M. DUNLAP, of Bennett's stage line has our thanks for numerous favors in the shape of late Stockton papers kindly presented by him to this office.

RAIN.—On last Saturday night a most acceptable shower of rain visited this section. It was badly needed and more would have been acceptable.

WE are informed that a number of horses have died very suddenly, in this vicinity lately, from unexplained causes.

THE RIVER still remains at a low stage and appearances are that it will remain so for some time yet.

A Body and Mind Disease.

Such is Dyspepsia. The stomach and the brain are too intimately allied for the one to suffer without the other, so that dyspepsia and derangement of the brain are inseparable. It may be added, too, that irritation of the stomach is almost invariably followed by irritation of the temper.

The invigorating and tranquilizing operation of Hostetter's Bitters is most powerfully developed in cases of indigestion. The first effect of this agreeable tonic is comforting and encouraging. A mild glow pervades the system, the chronic uneasiness in the region of the stomach is lessened, and the nervous restlessness which characterizes the disease is abated. This improvement is not transient. It is not succeeded by the return of the old symptoms with superadded force, as is always the case when unmedicated stimulants are given for the complaint. Each dose seems to impart a permanent accession of healthful invigoration. But this is not all. The aperient and anti-bilious properties of the preparation are scarcely secondary in importance to its tonic virtues. If there is an overflow of bile the secretion is soon brought within proper limits and the bile itself is lessened and purified. The effect upon the discharging organs is equally salutary, and in cases of constipation the cathartic action is just sufficient to produce the desired result, without the use of any other medicine. The Bitters also promote healthy evaporation from the surface which is particularly desirable at this season when sudden spells of raw, unpleasant weather are apt to check the natural perspiration and produce congestion of the liver, lungs, and colds. The Best Safeguard Against all Diseases is Bitterly Vio, and this the Great Vegetable Restorative essentially promotes.

SLEEP.

The beautiful Gate of Sleep is barred!
O Angel within!
The panels of pearl with diamonds starred,
Give back no sound to my feeble knock;
I have no key that will turn the lock!
How long must I wait?
O evermore and forevermore
Must I stand at the Beautiful Gate!

My garments are thin—my sandals are worn,
Sweet Angel within!
How piercing the blast!—how sharp the thorn!
The night is cheerless—the wind is wild;
My bruised heart sobs like a piteous child.
How long must I wait?
O evermore and forevermore
Must I stand at the Beautiful Gate!

If I were a queen, I'd give my crown,
O Angel within!
Or I would lay my laurels down;
Or rich, I'd yield thee my resplendent gold,
For thy sweet shelter from rain and cold.
How long must I wait?
O evermore and forevermore
Would I pass through the Beautiful Gate!

FRENCH CARRIER PIGEON MAIL SERVICE.—Numbers of these little intelligent birds are being trained at the General Postoffice in Paris, and whenever dispatches are sent out in a balloon, a couple of pigeons always accompany them. When they arrive at Tours they are fed and then a square piece of paper on which the provincial news is written, is fastened with gum to a feather or wing of the bird, which the moment it feels itself free, flies away in the direction of its home, which it invariably reaches, guided by that wonderful instinct which one might almost call reason, so closely does it border on it. At first the dispatch used to be fastened by thread to the leg or neck of the bird, but it happened once or twice that the thread broke, and the pigeon returned home without the message upon which so much depended. This led to the plan of gumming the papers to the bird's feathers and not a single dispatch sent in this way has miscarried. The post pigeons are chiefly tumbler or carrier, and the speed at which they travel is very remarkable. In a second one of them travels thirty yards, so that we may calculate their speed at 1,800 yards per minute. I have been told that a pigeon went from Babylon to Aleppo in 48 hours, a journey which a good walker could not perform in a month—their strength of wing enables them to cut so quickly through the air.

SHALL WE HAVE A FEMALE BIBLE?—The Bible has been a stumbling block to a great many reformers of the ultra sort. This moment it stands in the way of Mrs. Cady Stanton, and Miss Susan B. Anthony, and their friends of the extreme Woman's Rights movement. The command, "Wives, submit yourselves to your husbands," is particularly obnoxious to them, and a resolution was adopted the other day by the Woman's Suffrage Association explicitly repudiating the obligation. It was declared that the best in question "should be thrown aside with the exploded theories of kinglycraft and slavery embodied in the injunctions, 'Honor the King,' and 'Servants obey your masters.' Mrs. Stanton, indeed, took broader ground. She did not waste her words on isolated texts, but boldly demanded a revision of the Scriptures, with a special reference to the views she advocates. Moses she tied to Montesquieu, and then threw both overboard, complaining that men had hitherto invariably translated the Bible, and contending that if women were now allowed to try their hand, we should have another and a new version. St. Paul, we fear, would then share the fate marked out for Moses.—N. Y. Times.

HOSE.—Johnny, what gender is hose, stockings, you know? "Sometimes masculine and sometimes feminine." "No, no, my son; hose is neuter." "Well, anyhow, I heard a man talking on a farm one day, and he said 'he hoses, and she hoses, and the old man hoses,' and that knocks your neuter all to pieces."

As a companion piece to the song, "Oh, give me back but yesterday," a melody will soon be issued entitled, "Oh, could you spare to-morrow?" which will be followed by "You haven't got such a thing as next week about you, have you?" They will undoubtedly become immensely popular.

An Albany undertaker has initiated a coffin which folds down and exposes the body at full length, making it appear as if reclining on a sofa. It is designed to save people of weak nerves the shocking sight of a coffin that looks like a coffin.

The Dominican Government is about to take the usual decennial census. The Canadian papers are discussing the probable result, and think that a population of about 4,300,000 will be shown.

IDLENESS is the dead sea that swallows all virtues, and the self-made sepulchre of a living man. The idle man is the devil's urchin, whose livery is rags, and whose diet is famine and disease.

It is not required that a man shall always be perfect in order to be a true Christian. But it is required that he should be a sincere seeker after perfection. It is required that he should be moving.

WHEN an Iowa girl is kissed, she frowns and says: "Put that article right back, sir, where you took it from."

THE STRENGTH OF RUSSIA.

In our yesterday's issue we gave some statistics relative to the military and naval strength of Italy, and propose now to do the same for a much greater nationality, one, in fact, which may be said to hold the balance of power between the two contending parties.

The peace establishment of Russia is divided as follows: Infantry, 304,422; cavalry, 88,806; artillery, 41,741; engineers, 13,413; in all, 457,875 men. The war establishment number: Of infantry, 594,511; cavalry, 49,183; artillery, 48,773; engineers, 10,203; in all, 808,670 men. What is called the army of the first reserve musters on a war footing 127,935; the army of the second reserve, 199,380. This gives a grand total of 812,096 men during peace, and 1,135,975 men ready for the emergencies of war.

But this tremendous force is only the regular troops which Russia is able to put in the field, and besides she has the irregulars, in some respects similar to the volunteer system of England and America. The principal of these are the Cossacks, made famous by the active part they took in the terrible Moscow campaign of 1812, where they contributed largely to the defeat and almost annihilation of the French invaders.

The Cossacks are not and never have been serfs. They are really a semi-independent people, owing allegiance to the Czar, but enjoying a free use of the territory, and paying no taxes. In exchange for these privileges they are bound to perform military duty whenever called upon. In extreme cases every male Cossack between the ages of fifteen and sixty is liable to service, and that service is generally performed with the utmost willingness and efficiency. Their organization is cavalry exclusively, and of this they usually have always under arms fifty-four regiments—56,376 men. In time of war they can muster not less than 130,000. The Russian army is as thoroughly equipped as any in Europe; the officers are carefully educated at first class military schools, and all the modern improvements, in the shape of arms and projectiles are tried and adopted as soon as their merits are demonstrated. The fighting qualities of the Russian soldiery cannot be surpassed. Believing implicitly that the Czar is the representative of God on earth, they go into battle with the full assurance that whoever falls is translated at once to paradise, there to enjoy forever the reward of his patriotism and his faith. The followers of Mahomet never trusted and obeyed their prophet than do these Muscovites their Emperor. Such a moral force as this, coupled with physical stamina of the highest order, and unimpeachable bravery and discipline, is well nigh invincible. At the peace of Tilsit, in 1807, when Alexander and Napoleon reviewed their respective armies on the banks of the Niemen, the latter was particularly struck with the appearance of the Russians, whose unconquerable valor he had so lately felt in the fierce struggle of Eylau and Friedland, and remarked to his imperial brother: "My soldiers are as brave as it is possible to be, but they are too much addicted to reasoning on their position. If they had the impassable firmness and docility of the Russians, the world would be too small for their exploits. The French soldiers are too much attached to their country to play the part of Macedonians." The ordinance foundries of St. Petersburg, Briansk and Petrozavodsk are able to turn out annually 800 cannon; a cartridge factory, now about completed, produces 500,000 rounds daily, while the manufactories of small arms are not less admirably managed. The engineer corps is headed by the Grand Duke Nicholas and Lieutenant General Todleben, the famous defender of Sebastopol, and is quite on a par with the other departments. Under the direction of these officers iron batteries are being prepared at Cronstadt to resist the assaults of iron-clad vessels; the pontoon trains are already supplied with iron boats, and 1,000 submarine torpedoes are prepared annually to be used against any enemy entering Russian harbors.

The navy of Russia, according to the official statement in 1869, numbers 290 steamers, carrying 2,205 guns, and 29 sailing vessels, carrying 65 guns. In 1868 she had 24 ironclads, carrying 149 guns; but this branch has been largely increased in the last two years. The fleets are manned by 60,230 sailors and marines, and 3,731 officers of all grades. With such immense resources as these, backed by a natural situation which must forever bar the advance of an invading foe to the heart of the empire, Russia is ready for either peace or war. She has declared her neutrality in the present contest, but that neutrality will continue just so long as it is for her advantage and no longer. If she fights at all it will be on the side of Prussia.—St. Louis Republican.

The most useful thing, after all, in a "long run," is breath.

HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

ABOUT THE DOOR.—A bit of shrubbery in the yard, a vine climbing by a trellis, a strip of green spread from the door, are sure to make a place of greater marketable value; which, with many, is a consideration to be thought of more than any other. Such need no further appeal to their sense of neatness, then. But those who really love the suggestion of beauty for their own sake, will not omit the turf patch, the shrubbery, and the hedge and vine, because they make almost any home more attractive, and cause the sentiments to sprout like the very leaves and buds themselves. How few stop to consider what a powerful association lies lurking in every simple but familiar object, like a tree, a bit of grass or a border of flowers! They are objects that hold us almost as steadily and strongly to home as wife and children; they are associated with and difficult to be separated. Therefore we say to all, "Brush up about the door and plant near by an object of beauty. It will bear fruit in the heart of an hundred-fold." American Journal of Horticulture.

TURNIPS.—It is surprising that the round flat—commonly called English turnip, so palatable and nutritive, is so seldom found on many of our farmer's tables. It must be that they do not understand their worth and the small cost of raising them; and we recently heard a farmer say that they did not cost him more than three cents per bushel, and as a feed for stock they are fully equal to potatoes, and from an acre you can get from eighty to a hundred bushels if they do well, while the yield of potatoes would not be more than one half as much. The white turnip may be a successful crop after wheat has been cut, sowed among the corn, as is adopted by some farmers, but is not favored by me, as it prevents the corn ripening and filling out.—Farmer.

THERE seems to be great difference in soils with respect to the influence of lime upon them. Liming on some farms is without benefit, while on others it increases the yield nearly one-half. The presumption is that in the first instance the soil needed something else, while in the second lime was exactly what it wanted to improve vigor to it.

WATER CAKE.—One teacup of sugar, two eggs, half a cup of butter, one teacup of water, two cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar, one of soda; beat the butter and eggs to a cream, then add the other ingredients; stir well and bake quick, flavor with nutmeg or lemon.

JOHNNY CAKE.—One pint of sweet milk, two eggs, a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of cream tartar, half a teaspoonful of soda, two thirds of a pint of Indian meal, and a large tablespoonful of wheat flour. Bake forty minutes and serve with butter.

A PARTY of respectable Chicago ladies have formed a society for reclaiming young men, and they go about the streets at night and pick up young men who show signs of dissipation, invite to ice cream, chicken salad, and the like, and let them go home sober. As the result it is reported that half the young men in town lie around the street at night to be taken in.

HOWE MACHINE COMPANY'S

WORLD RENOWNED

SEWING MACHINES!

Paris Exposition Universelle, 1867.

TWO GRAND PRIZES.

GRAND CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOR.

To Elias Howe, Jr., as Inventor,

And Gold Medal for

THE BEST SEWING MACHINE.

Highest Honors ever Conferred

FOR SEWING MACHINES.

THE Machine which bears his name has long been regarded as the standard of excellence, and has become celebrated the world over. The work done by these Machines is unsurpassed—sewing the thinnest muslin or the thickest cloth, with equal facility; and requiring no extra adjusting for uneven thickness or passing over seams; it turns its own hem as it sews, sewing a seam stronger than the fabric itself. To see it hem, fold, tuck, braid, cord, quilt and gather, it seems more like a thing of life than a machine moved by the will of the operator. It is capable of doing any description of sewing that is required in a family; and also for seamstresses and dressmakers it will be found invaluable. They seldom or never give any trouble in operating, and in a word, are the

MOST SATISFACTORY SEWING MACHINES IN USE.

Notwithstanding their great superiority, they are sold at prices as low as other first-class Machines.

A Medallion likeness of Mr. Howe is imbedded in the plates of every Howe Machine, without which none are genuine. Every purchaser of a Sewing Machine, should inquire for Elias Howe, Jr.'s Sewing Machines, And if they are not sold in their vicinity, address the General Agency for Illustrated Circulars, etc., and do not purchase until you have thoroughly investigated these renowned machines.

THE ELLIPTIC

SEWING MACHINES!!

WARRANTED THE BEST.

THE Elliptic Sewing Machine are made and warranted by the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company. The late and important improvements enable us to guarantee to every purchaser that the Elliptic Machine will do more work, better work, and a greater variety of work than any other Sewing Machine now in use. The economy of the Elliptic Machine in a family is almost incredible; with one, a good operator can do the work of twelve hand. By it, the making of garments is reduced from a question of hours to one of minutes, as the following table will show:

(It is not to be understood that the following table is the time to make the garments, but to do the stitching only.)

AYERS' CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Coughs, Asthma and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given against incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and, indeed, as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases of the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of their here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

WHEELER & WILSON.

THE GREAT TRIAL OF SEWING MACHINES.

THE GRANDEST IN THE WORLD.

The Judges, the whole world; and the trial fifteen years duration.

PRACTICAL USE THE TEST!

THE UNIVERSAL VERDICT:
"THE WHEELER & WILSON SEWING MACHINE THE CHAMPION!"

AS A HOLIDAY PRESENT NOTHING WOULD BE MORE APPRECIATED THAN ONE OF THESE MACHINES

THESE UNEQUALLED MACHINES DO ALL the different work required to be done in a family, and make all the different kinds of Stitches without the complications of other machines. All persons will please examine the WHEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINES before purchasing any other.

The Wheeler & Wilson as is well known, has won at nearly every trial in which it has competed the highest award of merit. The representatives of other machines, ever confident, have entered the lists, time and again, only to be defeated; and finding it impossible to compete fairly, have endeavored to decry the value of premiums. They are not slow, however, to boast of a few they have received. But in the grand trial, daily use throughout the world, where only true merit finds favor, and superiority wins the race, the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine stands triumphantly the Champion by the verdict of the people.

THESE MACHINES ARE ADAPTED TO EVERY VARIETY OF SEWING.

From the lightest muslin to the heaviest cloth, they work equally well upon Silk, Linen, Woolen or Cotton goods, with Silk, Linen or Cotton thread; Seaming, Quilting, Gathering, Hemming, Felling, Cording, Lining, Braiding, Embroidering and making Button Holes, with the greatest facility.

If it is inconvenient for the purchaser to visit the salesroom, he can be furnished with a copy of the office, and it will be as faithfully filled as if the selection had been made personally.

Full instructions, recently compiled, and giving information upon every point in the operation of each machine, and enable the most inexperienced to operate without difficulty.

Our interest in the successful working of Machines is not second to that of the purchaser, and we esteem it a privilege to aid by correspondence or otherwise, any person requiring it.

W. M. STODARD, General Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Francisco, corner Sacramento street, San Francisco.

The FLORENCE has now been used on the Pacific Coast since its merits are known, its reputation established.

It is here in daily use in more than six thousand houses, and is effectually speaking for itself, like

"GOLD TRIED IN THE FIRE."

Competition and opposition—fair and unfair—have not consumed or injured it. It stands the practical test upon a greater range of work than any other Family Sewing Machine in use.

IF THERE IS ONE WITHIN A THOUSAND MILES OF SAN FRANCISCO NOT WORKING WELL, IF INFORMED OF IT, I WILL FIX IT FOR NOTHING, AND PAY ALL EXPRESS CHARGES.

Shoemakers, Tailors, and Glove-makers are invited to examine our New Florence Manufacturing Machine.

Descriptive Circulars and Samples of Sewing sent free on application.
